Since Mr. Meyer became Chief Engineer of the Public Service Production Company I have been somewhat familiar with his work and with his responsibilities. These are heavy and cover a wide range of activities in the electrical construction line. He has discharged them in such a manner that I would have no hesitation in recommending his transfer to the grade of Fellow. My wonder is that Mr. Meyer has not applied for transfer before.

While it is perhaps not pertinent in this connection to mention his Institute activities, I might say that I know they covered a wide range. I have been closely associated with him many times, and have found his judgment to be good. He has not spared himself in any way to further the interests of the Institute.
