To Lord Kelvin.

Peace and the grace of God abide with thee,
Fallen with weight of over-ripened days!
Thou canst not hear how men forbear to praise
For grief the world has lost thy majesty.

How shall we more exalt thy fame's degree,
Or to thy memory enduring raise
More lofty tribute than thy Learning lays
Upon thy tomb? What words of eulogy

Are needed more to save thy cherished name
From unremembered annals of the dead?
But with the great of every land we bow
In sorrow, while with loftiest acclaim
Thou to thine everlasting rest are laid
With crown of noble works upon thy brow.

Associate A. I. E. E.
